P.A.D.S. Summer Shelter Site: We are in need of travel-sized soap, shampoo, dental and shaving toiletries. The guests also greatly appreciate new adult men's socks and underwear, as well as gently used adult lightweight clothing and sturdy shoes. There is always a need for used, adult-sized backpacks and duffel bags, as well. Please place any donations in the blue box across from the church office.

Weekly Devotional

Failure in people is caused more by lack of determination than lack of talent.

*And let us not be weary in well doing:
for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.*

In 1982, internal-medicine resident Barry Marshall was frustrated that there was no cure for his patients with ulcers. Then, while studying a stomach biopsy, he saw organisms resembling Campylobacter bacteria, first identified by his hospital's pathologist, Dr. J. Robin Warren. Warren and Marshall studied 100 ulcer patients for a year, and found the bacteria in 87 percent of the cases. Leading specialists, however, insisted the bacteria developed after the specimens were removed. For decades, clinical researchers had concluded that ulcers were based on weak stomach linings. Marshall's bacterial theory was snubbed.

Warren and Marshall cultured the bacteria for observation and found that a combination of bismuth and antibiotics destroyed it. Again, their report was met with skepticism. Marshall reported study after study. Still, doctors refused to conduct clinical trials. Finally, trials began in 1986, four years after Marshall's initial findings. These studies confirmed both Marshall's bacterial theory and his treatment methods.

Because a young internist "wouldn't accept no" from the medical community, the vast majority of ulcers, and some stomach cancers, can now be treated successfully!
